Having formed this decision, while Her Majesty appreciates the considerate and liberal spirit evinced in the proposition of the Sub-Committee, to place the statue experimentally upon the arch, on the condition that, if its appearance should be disapproved of by Her Majesty and Her Government, the Sub-Committee would undertake to replace matters as they at present stand, Her Majesty regrets that she cannot sanction a step which, while it would probably add to the expenses already incurred by the promoters of the design, would certainly lead to a renewal of conflicting and embarrassing discussions. I have, and c. His Grace the Duke of Rutland, K. G. (signed) Morpeth. and c. and c. The Sub-Committee of the Wellington Memorial present their compliments to Lord Morpeth, and beg leave to acknowledge his letter of the 5th, received by the Duke of Rutland very late last night. They will have to make in reply what they conceive to be a very important communication, but as, in consequence of his Graces being obliged, by indispensable engagements, to leave town this morning, they are compelled to postpone it for two or three days. Under these circumstances they hope that Lord Morpeth will not think it necessary to make any public declaration of Her Majestys withdrawal of her consent until he should have had an opportunity of considering the communication which they will have the honour of making to him....
